ARGUMENT.

HENRI, MARQUIS OF CORNEVILLE, who has been since childhood, owing to civil war, an exile, returns to his ancestral home on the occasion of the great annual fair which is being celebrated in the village that receives its name from his chateau. It is one of the old-fashioned Norman villages of the seventeenth century.

In the First Act, the curtain rises on an assemblage of village gossips, discussing scandal and small talk. SERPOLETTE, a cross between Fanchon and Boulotte, is the topic of conversation among the belles of Corneville. She comes in just in time to turn the tables on the others, and changes their taunts into expressions of rage. GASPARD, an old miser, wishes to marry his niece, GERMAINE, to the principal magistrate of the district, the BAILLI. This arrangement does not suit GERMAINE, nor a young fisherman named JEAN GRENICHEUX, who pretends that he has saved her life from drowning on a certain occasion. To escape from the power of old GASPARD, GERMAINE takes advantage of the privileges of the fair (a similar scene to that in the first act of "Martha"), and becomes the servant of the Marquis. Her example is followed by GRENICHEUX and SERPOLETTE.

The Second Act is taken up with the supernatural visitors who have made the Castle of Corneville so long an object of dread. HENRI determines to find out the real character of these ghostly appearances, and discovers that it is all the work of the old miser, who has concealed his treasures in the chateau. The discovery drives Gaspard crazy, especially when he hears the bells of the chateau ringing for the first time since the flight of the old Marquis.

The Third Act represents the grand fete given in honor of the return of HENRI to his ancestral home. SERPOLETTE arrives as a Marchionesss, as some papers, found in the chateau, indicate that she is the lost heiress. The miser, however, recovers his reason, and shows that GERMAINE is the true Marchioness. A love Duet between her and HENRI, and the reconciliation of all the parties, bring the romantic story to a close.

ACT I.

The stage represents a Forest Scene near the village of Corneville. At the middle of the scene is a fountain somewhat to the right of the spectator. At the first entrance, left, is a tall post, bearing a bill on which is inscribed in large letters, "Corneville Market, Grand Hiring of Maid-servants, Coachmen and Domestics." (Exeunt Omnes except SERPOLETTE, who hides herself. She then comes forward and signs to the other peasant girls to join her. They advance with hesitation, and form a circle around her.

SERP. Oh, come now! you must not take a little sharp talk too much to heart, girls. You know you began it. But it's all over, and I'm not the one to bear malice. Well, I admit I was foolish enough at one time to allow this miserable, good-for-nothing fellow, Jean Grenicheux, who couldn't speak the truth, if he tried, to keep company with me. Of course, when that horrid old miser, Gaspard, brought his chalky-faced, simpering niece, Germaine, into the house, Grenicheux found it more profitable to dance attendance on an heiress than to be true to a poor, friendless girl. But, let me tell you, he's wasting his time there.

GERTRUDE. You do not seem to have a particularly good opinion of Father Gaspard.

SERP. Good opinion? Why, bless your silly heart! he is such a repulsive creature, that I often wishsd he had never found me in the fields when I was a baby!

MANETTE. Where did Germaine spring from?

SERP. Oh, some vulgar stock, I suppose! Now, as for me, do you know, girls, tnat I often dream that royal blood flows in these veins, and that princely parents are hunting all over the world for me!

ALL. Royal blood! A princess! Ha, ha, ha!

SERP. What do you think of the grand wedding, that is to come off soon? Little Germaine, hardly out of her pinafores, and that precious old booby of a Bailli, who is as old as Methusaleh, and looks like a scarecrow.

BAILLI to GASPARD. Well, truly, such impertinence!

GASP. You wretched foundling, and good for nothing girl! I'll make you feel the weight of my cane.

SERP. I know you would if you could catch me, but you shall not have the chance. Now for a race, go as you please. (Exit, pursued by GASPARD.)

BAILLI. Don't excite yourself, Gaspard. I care not what envious tongues may say, as long as the fair Germaine is to be my bride.

GERTRUDE. His bride? Jannary and May. Listen, girls, to the venerable lover, with one foot in the grave.

GASP. (reentering.) Silence, you pack of scandal mongers; be off at once, or beware the consequences!

(Exeunt Village girls laughing.)

BAILLI. They are not to blame, after all, as long as your niece, Germaine, encourages them.

GASP. Why, you must be mistaken. My niece would not associate with such hussies.

BAILLI. Well, I know one thing, and that is, she never loses an opportunity to encourage the attentions of that wretched fisherman Grenicheux.

GASP. Pshaw! You should give her credit for more taste. Why, he serves as a butt of ridicule for the village.

BAILLI. You forget that he rescued her from drowning once, and gratitude, you know.

GASP. That counts for nothing. He was fishing, my niece fell off the rocks into the sea, and he could not help catching something. Any one might have done the same.

BAILLI. At all events, don't forget your promise, Gaspard. Germaine is to be mine, or a gentle hint to the authorities about certain goings on of yours.

GASP. (aside.) Heavens! can he guess? No, no, it cannot be (aloud.) Your language is quite an enigma to me, I assure you.

BAILLI. Indeed! For instance, your administration of the affairs of the former Marquis of Corneville, who has been an exile for so many years.

GASP. My administration defies investigation. I am ready to meet the Marquis, or his son, if ever they return, and render a strict account.

BAILLI. You are very confident and I am glad of it. Now, these phantoms that haunt the castle.

GASP. I am not the guardian of spirits. If they wish to roam around nightly, how can I help it?

BAILLI. Well, I shall see about it and shall search the chateau.

GASP. Don't, I beg of you. Leave the ghosts in their own quarters, and do not set them loose in the village. What is the use, now, in being over zealous. Germaine shall be yours, and I'll make preparations for a hasty wedding.

BAILLI. That just suits me (GRENICHEUX heard within). Ah! here comes that miserable fisherman.

GASP. Leave me to settle his pretentions with this cane.

BAILLI. No, no, we must have no scandal here. Come. (Exeunt.)

GERM. And if so, I am at perfect liberty to make a choice.

GERM. You take good care not to let me forget.

(Cries of people within.)

GREN. (going to back.) What is all this commotion about?

GERM. (going to back.) Why, what a strange looking man, and a queer looking dress. No wonder he has a crowd after him.

(Enter HENRI, in Mexican costume, followed by villagers.)

HENRI. Well, such inquisitive people, I declare. Please moderate your curiosity. It may be a rather strange costume in your eyes but you must admit, a highly picturesque one. Just the thing for a figure like this. Well, to satisfy your curiosity, pretty maidens, permit me to introduce myself as one from the other world.

VILLAGE GIRLS. (screaming.) A ghost! a ghost!

HENRI. Well no, rather too substantial for that. The other world is America, where I lived among the savages.

GERM. Do all the savages dress like you?

HENRI. Bless your pretty face, no. The savages paint as the great ladies do in France, and have the same affection for other people's hair.

GERTRUDE. Please, tell us all about them.

HENRI. My little beauty, you must really excuse me now.

ALL. We must hear the story now. (All crowd around.)

HENRI. Really, young people, you will spoil this costume. Please, permit me to suffer Messieurs the savages to rest for the present, as I wish to do.

GERM. You are a stranger here, Monsieur.

HENRI. Yes, a wandering seaman. I left my bark at Honfleur and intend to return immediately to my gallant crew. I trust your curiosity being now satisfied, you will answer my question. What do you call that chateau, whose towers I saw rising above the tree-tops as I came along.

GERM. The chateau of Corneville, which has been closed against the world for twenty years. It is haunted by ghosts.

HENRI. How romantic! a haunted chateau! I have heard of such things, but this is the first opportunity I have had to form the acquaintance of a genuine ghost. I shall start at once for the chateau.

GERM. (detaining him.) Oh, sir, you know not what a terrible danger you would encounter. Do not, I beg of you, brave the anger of demons.

HENRI. Sweet lady, have I not braved danger before? Have I not seen—

ALL. (crowding.) Oh! tell us. You have seen—

HENRI. Nothing. Why, some living beings are worse than spirits. Bah! your ghosts are masquerading knaves.

GERM. Oh, sir, if you had seen the windows of the chateau lighted up by unearthly hands, and phantoms flitting across the illuminated halls. No one has ever unlocked the doors of the chateau.

HENRI. Hence this ghostly legend.

GERM. There is another legend about the chateau.

HENRI. Tell me of it, I pray. I am very fond of legends.

GERM. It says that when one of the old family of nobles, that formerly dwelt in Corneville returns to claim his ancestral home, the chimes of the chatean, which have been so long silent shall sound once more. Listen to the legend.

THE FAIR OF CORNEVILLE.

(Enter GRENICHEUX frightened and out of breath.)

GREN. Was there ever a more unfortunate wretch than poor Grenicheux? A fugitive from justice. What shall I do? I have made the Bailli and Gaspard my enemies for life. I must now give up all thoughts of Germaine, and seek service of some master at the fair to-day. That is the only chance left for me to escape the clutches of the Bailli and the law.

GER. Yes; you'll find it out, if the Bailli or Gaspard lay hands on you!

GREN. Oh, save me! Save me! What shall I do?

GER. You have got Germaine into a nice pickle. Old Gaspard swears he'll lock her up!

GREN. Oh, I promise never to meet her again. (Cries within.) Here they are after me! Help! Help! (Exit GRENICHEUX.)

NOT. Come, girls, do not loiter here; but go and join the other villagers in the grand procession. Hasten, or you will be too late.

(Exeunt Village Girls.)

NOT. The timid little dears! Be still, my fluttering heart! Now, gentleman, I wish you to bear in mind that in consequence of the unaccountable disappearance of the Bailli, on me rests the responsibility of opening the fair of Corneville. I wish, therefore, that all due respect be paid to the dignity of my office.

ALL. (Bowing.) Yes, noble sir.

NOT. A little lower, gentlemen: bend your backs a little more There; my dignity is duly honored. Now to your places. Do not run in that manner, like untrained school-boys; but in this manner, with becoming gravity and respect. Now, hand me my wand of office. Compose your looks with proper solemnity. ACT II.

ENTR' ACTE.

A hall in the chateau of Corneville. In the front of the stage, at left of spectator, two large windows, concealed by tapestry curtains Opposite, on the right side, at front, a little practical door in the wainscoting. On either side are chandeliers, in which are six candles nearly consumed. Further up, two large windows open at the right on a gallery which leads outside to the river, and at the left, on another conducting to the other parts of the chateau. Near the windows and the gallery on the left, at the back, is the figure of a warrior in iron armor, mounted on a rolling chariot. A table and chairs of the period are on the stage; there is also a piece of tapestry, representing a hunt in the time of Henri II. When the tapestry is drawn aside, a second hall is seen which is covered with dust and cobwebs. In this appartment, which extends to the very back of the stage, stand four pedestals surmounted with warriors in iron uniform. The first pedestal at the left has lost its figure which is that to be found in the first appartment, mounted on a chariot.

Enter Serpolette, Grenicheux and Bailli, groping in the dark. They touch each other and recoil with a cry.

HENRI. (Within.) Guard the doors, my men! We'll have them soon!

SERP., GREN. & BAILLI. (Falling on their knees.) We're lost! Mercy! Mercy!

[Enter HENRI and his men. Two of them are covered with dust.]

HENRI. Hello! you have some of the dust of ages on you. Don't mind, my lads: you shall have something to wash it down. Can any one have penetrated beyond this hall from the river?

GERM. Here are three—who can they be?

HENRI. Some of your ghosts. My men have turned the tables on them, and have thoroughly frightened them.

GREN. Please, good ghosts, spare us this time!

SERP. (Looking up.) As I live, there is Germaine!

GERM. Why, Serpolette, how came you here?

BAILLI. Little Germaine in the chateau!

HENRI. Yes, she is a brave girl, and one not afraid of ghosts.

GERM. Don't be too sure of that, my lord. I have been trembling like an aspen leaf ever since I entered here, and my heart goes pit-a-pat as if it was going to jump out of my mouth any moment.

HENRI. So, Monsieur le Bailli, this is the care you take my chateau during my absence!

BAILLI. Your chateau?

HENRI. Yes, mine. Henri de Corneville, returned to claim his own

BAILLI. Most wonderful! I am delighted to hear it!

SERP. The captain a marquis! Can it be?

HENRI. Come, sir, is this the way you attend to your duties? Allowing these venerable walls to be made the sport of graceless mountebanks?

BAILLI. My lord, I assure you——

HENRI. What have you to say for yourself, sir?

BAILLI. Those scandal-loving villagers have driven me almost crazy.

BAILLI. My lord, if you will permit me——

HENRI. Silence, sir! Have you anything to say about these so-called ghosts?

BAILLI. They do not come within the scope of my official duties.

GERM. Here's one on rollers. (Pushes armed figure forward.)

HENRI. There's nothing unreal about this one.

SERP. Here are candles that have been lighted recently.

HENRI. We are coming at the truth. Now, who attends to these candles?

GREN. His satanic majesty, of course

HENRI. It is all knavery, we shall see. Come—to work! Here is a curtain, perhaps something may be concealed behind it. (Raises arras hangings and discovers hall with armed statues.)

GREN. (falling on his knees.) There they are! Save me! Save me

HENRI. Peace, fool! They are the arms of my noble ancestors.

HENRI. Pshaw! Here is the explanation of this wonderful mystery. There can be only one entrance for these, so-called, ghosts to my chateau. They come from the river side. No one can know anything about our coming here. We arrived when the moon was hidden behind a cloud. Now let a guard be placed at every door.

GERM. Excuse me, my lord, but here is a door we have not seen before. There is a key in it.

HENRI. Thanks, my dear. Let me investigate the mystery. (Exit HENRI.)

SERP. I wonder what kind of ghosts are in there?

BAILLI. I don't believe in ghosts. Where are they?

GREN. Look there! Save me! Save me! (Enter HENRI, covered with a sheet.)

HENRI. Well, what nonsense! Here is some of your ghostly trumpery. By the way, I found this tin box which may contain some important documents. By Jove, what is this? An official document! Please, Monsieur le Bailli, read it.

BAILLI. (Reading.) "My dear Gaspard"——

SERP AND GERM. What! The old miser?

BAILLI. (Reading.) "I am obliged to fly from France. My infant daughter I confide to your care. Bring her up as a simple peasant girl, as I fear much that my enemies, were they to know that she was my child, would kill her. My dear Gaspard, do all for her you can, and when I return I shall repay you an hundred fold.

(Signed.)

"HENRI, MARQUIS OF LUCENAY.

"May 16th, 1667."

SERP. One moment! I am convinced I am his child! I was found by Gaspard, and the only child he ever found, on the date mentioned. I am the long-lost child. I am the Marchioness. Look at the date.

HENRI. Well, we'll admit all you say, Serpolette, but your claims must yet be decided upon. There is the evidence of the old miser, Gaspard, to be given.

SERP. Why, how can there be any doubt about the matter? Gaspard never had a baby besides your humble servant.

GREN. For heaven's sake, your Highness, let me go home. I see a ghost in every wave of the curtains.

HENRI. You miserable effigy of a man! Listen, my gallant fellows --take care of this wretched poltroon, and if he utters one cry, pitch him into the river!

GREN. Oh, what a fate is mine!

HENRI. Now, Serpolette. (Sailors hustle GRENICHEUX about, and carry him away.)

SERP. "Serpolette," my lord! Such undue familiarity! The "Marchioness," probably, you meant to say.

HENRI. Madmoiselle, I stand corrected,—the "Marchioness," of course! Now, would you be so kind as to retire to yonder tapestried room for a few minutes, and look over the records of your family?

SERP. Certainly, my lord,—with you as company.

HENRI. I have other business to attend to.

SERP. But a Marchioness all alone in a haunted room —

HENRI. Armed with the records of your noble birth.

SERP. True; very true. But, suppose some ghost should make love to me?

HENRI. Ask him his pedigree—he will soon vanish.

SERP. Well, then, my lord, I shall retire for the present to read the records of my noble family. I shall leave you here with this young person. I believe, they call her Germaine. "Serpolette," indeed! "Marchioness," I say, and don't you forget it!

(Exit SERPOLETTE.)

GERM. Why, my lord, all are gone, and we are all alone.

HENRI. Well, suppose so. A brave little heart like yours fears nothing. Come, tell me about this marriage of yours, with that old, broken-down Bailli.

GERM. It was a false report. Such a marriage could never take place. Besides, there was Jean Grenicheux.

HENRI. What! that booby? For goodness' sake, what right had he to interfere?

GERM. My lord, he has an influence over me on the score of gratitude. He saved my life once, by rescuing me from the sea, after I fell from the rocks, a mile or so from the village. Although I do not love him, I must be grateful.

HENRI. (Aside.) The unconscionable rascal! To claim the credit of what I have done! (Aloud.) Well, I had no idea that I had engaged a coachman who is in the knight-errant business. But your face reminds me of days when, as a youth, I dreamed of such a beautiful being!

(Knocking heard within.)

HENRI. Ah! the signal. Now, for an interview with the ghosts. They won't like it, I am sure. Serpolette! Serpolette! Oh! pardon me—Marchioness! Marchioness!

(Enter SERPOLETTE.)

SERP. That name, Marchioness, my lord, must meet a ready response.

HENRI. I merely wished to advise your ladyship that our expected visitors, the ghosts, are about to put in an appearance.

SERP. Oh, save me, my lord! I don't want to meet them.

HENRI. Fear in the breast of the Marchioness De Lucenay? Why, I am surprised!

SERP. Right, my lord; I am once more on my dignity. Marchioness, if you please; don't you forget it. But then, is there nothing more substantial for a Marchioness than ghosts? (Cries within.) Here they come! Here they come? Ah, save me! Help! The Marchioness is going to faint!

HENRI. Why, you silly creature! these are only my men! Look at this staunch little craft here, Germaine, who fears no man!

GERM. My Lord, a ghost and a man are very different things!

(Enter GRENICHEUX, BAILLI, & SAILORS.)

HENRI. Now, Monsieur Le Bailli, we shall very soon have an opportunity of interviewing those precious ghosts of yours.

BAILLI. Your Excellency, one of your crew informs me that there is a boat on the river approaching the chateau, and that one man alone is in it.

GREN. Help! Help! Look at that phantom!

SERP. You donkey! It is only the curtain which I was pulling back

GREN. A pull back? Oh, that is a very different thing.

HENRI. (Aside.) That miserable liar, Grenicheux! Won't I make him smart for his intolerable falsehoods. (Aloud) My men, this hall will be the first place where the ghosts will come. We must hide, so as to intercept them. Now some one must remain here on guard. Who shall it be?

A VERY SMALL SAILOR (steps forward). I, captain.

HENRI. Oh, no! You wouldn't be a mouthful for a ghost. Let me see—I want the bravest man in the crew. Who is he? Ah! here he is! (Claps GRENICHEUX on the back.) Come, boys, put him in yonder armor.

GREN. Oh, please your highness, I am scared out of my wits!

HENRI. So much the better. They are not of much use to you Put him in the armor on wheels.

GREN. I shall die of fright!

HENRI. So much the better for the ghosts, and the worse for you

GREN. Let me go this time, my lord, and I promise never to come here again!

A light, and coming this way! Who is it, or rather what is it? I must shut my eyes and pray, if I can, for protection.

(Enter GASPARD carrying a lantern.)

GASP. I wonder what has come over me to-night. I feel as if something was going to happen. What can it be? Pshaw, Gaspard! courage! Courage, man! Leave such idle fears to the boobies of yonder village!

GREN. (Aside. I am afraid to look at it, whatever it is.

GASP. Idle fears! Why, Gaspard, old man, you are a fool! No one dare venture in this neighborhood after dark.

GREN. (Aside.) Here is one poor devil who has gone and done it!

GASP. And that old Bailli—what did he mean by his hints to-day? Can he suspect? No, no! And yet he seemed so positive! Bah! Cheer up, Gaspard! No one knows where you keep your savings bank. The old chateau of Corneville—what a hiding-place! No absconding cashier, no speculative president. (Rolls armor with GRENICHEUX up and down.)

GREN. Mercy! Mercy!

GASP. What's the matter with you? Did you speak? Pshaw! An old armor that has rusted here for ages. Gaspard, if you go on like this, you will soon be as big a fool as any of the bumpkins of yonder village. (Places lantern and money bags on table.)

GREN. What a narrow escape! Now I'm only an old rusty armor.

GASP. What did that old fool of a Bailli mean by his questions about the former Marquis and my administration of his affairs?

GREN. (Aside.) I think, upon my word, that I am going to faint!

GASP. (Lighting candles.) And only think of it—Germaine gone off with that foreign captain, when I had everything arranged for her wedding with the Bailli; but I shall have her back—I shall have her back! There is law in this country, even if it is Normandy; and the Bailli shall have his bride, and I shall be then rid of him and her. She has been such a charge! Little did her father, the Marquis De Lucenay, think what a responsibility he placed on my shoulders, when he committed this child to my care. But I shall make a good thing out of it. (Lights candles.)

GREN. (Aside.) It is lighting up—now I am gone! Let me say my prayers.

GASP. My plans are too well laid to be discovered, unless one Marquis should come back to claim his inheritance, and the other to claim his daughter.

GREN. (Aside.) Why does it light so many candles?

GASP. What an ugly dream I have had! I thought that the Marquis De Lucenay came back and claimed his daughter from me.

GREN. (Aside.) What an ugly face this ghost has!

GASP. (Unlocking door and entering small room.) And now, for my precious gold, my darling treasure! Let me see it once again and add to it. My darling gold! My mistress that ever smiles on me!

GREN. Why, as I live, it is old Gaspard, that wretch of a miser! Heavens! he would kill me, if he should recognize me! Now, I must be wary in dealing with such an old scoundrel!

GASP. (Entering with bags of gold.) Oh, my darling gold! My darling gold! Mistress of my heart! (wrapping himself in a sheet.) By the way, I must not forget my ghost business. Here is a spiritual medium of the first water—terms moderate. Now, then, to perplex the boors of the village. Oh, confound this old armor (Pushes GRENICHEUX before him.)

GREN. Help! Help!

GASP. What did you say? Gaspard, you are an ass! Only a piece of rusty armor! Do you wish to be afraid of your own ghosts (Goes to window and waves sheet.) There now, if any country bumpkin sees me, he will rush home and tell his folks that the devils are holding high carnival in the chateau of Corneville! By the way, if ever I catch that miserable fisherman, Grenicheux, I'll kill him! (Runs armor up and down.)

GREN. Police! Police!

GASP. What's that you say? Pshaw!—only imagination! Now only think of it—the Bailli, Germaine, the Marquis and the accounts. Ah, here is something to console me! My gold! my gold! my darling gold! (Sits down to table, opens bags of gold and counts his money.)

PEASANT GIRLS. My dear Bailli! Why, how well you look! Where have you been? You seem worried. What has become of the bride? How about the honeymoon? Have you brought her back, or has she given you the slip?

BALLI. Be quiet, for goodness' sake. Never, in my life, have I had such a succession of queer adventures. Bells, ghosts, the return of the Marquis, crazy Gaspard, and the grand transformation of everything, have well nigh turned my head. Then, only think of little Serpolette and that fisherman, Grenicheux.

ALL. Please, tell us about them.

BAILLI. Well, the court has examined into the question of Serpolette's claim. They found that the page was removed from the register, at the date of the 16th of May, 1667. But the proofs are in favor of Serpolette, and show that she is the daughter of the Marquis De Lucenay. Therefore, the court decides in her favor

GERT. So, Serpolette, you have returned to us once more?

GREN. Yes, good people, her highness—

SERP. Shut up about my Highness. Well, I have condescended to see you once more. Bye the way, young person, there is some festival in progress here.

GERT. Oh yes! the Marquis celebrates his return from exile.

GREN. As we shall, when we open our chateau.

SERP. Will you be still? Ah! there was a person named Germaine.

GERT. Oh, she is the particular friend of the Marquis. They say—

SERP. It looks bad. I am astonished she should be so indiscreet.

GREN. It is scandalous.

SERP. Hold your tongue, sir. Go and attend to my carriage.

GREN. (aside.) She is an absolute tyrant. I shall not submit much longer to her intolerant airs. (aloud.) Your Highness's orders shall be obeyed. (Exit GREN.)

BAILLI. Excuse me, my lady, but I cannot listen to any charges against such a good girl as Germaine.

SERP (elevating eye glass.) Ah! I recollect. The elderly person who wished to marry this Germaine.

BAILLI. I acknowledge that I made a fool of myself in trying to win, one young enough to be my grand daughter. But I maintain, Germaine is a good girl.

SERP. Well, old gentleman, the subject is beneath the notice of the noble Marchioness and Countess De Lucenay. Can any of you tell me about a certain miser named Gaspard?

ALL. He is crazy, my lady. (GASP. dances insanely.)

SERP. What a horrible creature! I shall speak to him however. Perhaps the dignity of my presence may restore him to reason. Gaspard, I say, approach me.

GASP. Why, it is little Serpolette.

SERP. No sir, you address the Countess De Lucenay.

GASP. Ah! now I remember. The Count De Lucenay, committed his daughter to my care.

SERP. Behold that daughter.

GASP. You! why, you must be crazy.

SERP. You horrible creature, it is you who are crazy.

GASP. Serpolette the daughter of the Count De Lucenay! Why, it is the best joke, I have heard for a long time.

SERP. Begone, old man, Try and recover your senses.

(GASPARD dances and sings.)

BAILLI. Excuse the old fool, my lady. He is not responsible for what he says.

SERP. He is beneath the notice of the Countess De Lucenay, Ah! the music! the dance! just the thing for me.

BAILLI. Surely your ladyship would not condescend.

SERP. Just the very thing my ladyship will. Old man, I shall select you as a partner, but first let me sing you, one of our old Norman songs.

HENRI. (clapping his hands.) Bravo! Bravo! Excellent!

SERP. Good gracious! the Marquis to find me, a Countess, dancing the cancan.

BAILLI. My lord, I was just remarking to the noble Countess De Luccnay.

HENRI. Yes, so, I perceived, with your toes. Let me not interrupt you. So, my dear Countess, you have come back to us again.

SERP. Well, yes, Marquis. My first idea was to be presented at the court of Versailles, and the royal palace just suited me.

HENRI. Did you wish to purchase it?

SERP. Yes, but I changed my mind. I grew tired of having all the great lords of the court at my feet.

HENRI. Imploring one kind word.

SERP. Dukes, marquises, barons, all suppliants for my favor.

HENRI. Begging a single smile—

SERP. Yet I could not bring myself to forsake you all. I said if I must buy a castle, or palace somewhere, why not give Normandy the first show? Now there's yours, Marquis. What will you take for your castle?

HENRI. Well, really, it's not yet in the market.

SERP. If it should be, consider me a bidder—with all its former terrors it is dear to me as having be so long the repository of the records of my birth and station.

HENRI. Now, my friends, make yourselves at home. Monsier Sheriff, will you act as escort for Mademoiselle to the castle, and also show all the other guests what is to be seen.

BAILLI. Ah! such an honor, with the most profound pleasure.

SERP. Oh, Monsieur, you are too kind. (Takes his arm.)

BAILLI. Happiness excessive. Follow me, friends. (Exeunt Omnes except Marquis.)

HENRI. Poor little Serpolette! What a disappointment it will be to her, when the truth becomes known. And sweet Germaine, how I have learned to love her. I must disabuse her mind, sometime, of her fancied obligations to that lying scoundrel, Grenicheux. Ah! here comes the rascal, looking like a popinjay. (Retires up stage. Enter GREN.)

GREN. I cannot stand this any longer. Suppose she has become a titled lady, that is no reason why she should treat me like a dog. Give me Germaine any day before her. I'll give up the Marchioness for Gaspard's niece. She thinks that I saved her life by rescuing her from drowning.

HENRI. (coming forward.) Indeed! So my coachman saves young ladies from drowning?

GASP. My lord! my lord! Where have I been? My head still whirls. Ah! yes, yes; now I recognize you. You are my old master's living picture! Please, forgive a poor old man! (Falls on his knees.) A poor, poor old man! And she, Germaine, is the child intrusted to my care.

SERP. You horrid old miser—who then, am I?

GASP. Why only Serpolette, the mischief-maker of the village—a peasant's daughter, that is all!

HENRI. Well, Gaspard, I'll forgive you for all, as long as you have such a sweet petitioner here.

STUDENTS' SONGS.

(THE MOSES KING COLLECTION.)

COMPILED AND EDITED BY

WILLIAM H. HILLS,

HARVARD CLASS OF 1880.

BEFORE the publication of "Students' Songs," there was no collection of college-music including the songs which have had their origin and become popular within the last ten or fifteen years. The new songs, of which a great number had sprung into life, were nowhere to be found in print. They were known to comparatively few: and it was inevitable that unless they were put in permanent form, they would soon be forgotten, and lost for ever.

The first edition of "Students' Songs" was prepared in 1880, with a view to preserving these songs, and making them accessible to all. The success of the book was immediate. The second edition of "Students' Songs" was in reality an entirely new book. It contained none of the songs comprised in the first edition, but was made up of other wholly new songs, equal in merit and popularity. Like its predecessor, it had a most remarkable sale.

The third edition of "Students' Songs," published in May, 1883, comprised nearly all the songs of both the first and second editions, together with more than twenty pages of wholly new music, including all the latest college songs of the day. In less than six months the edition of five thousand copies was exhausted. Since then fifty thousand copies of the book have been disposed of, and the demand is unabated. Most of the songs which the book contains are copyrighted, and to be found in no other collection.

MESSRS. OLIVER DITSON & CO.

have the pleasure to announce that they have made arrangements for the exclusive publication of the above-named popular book, "Students' Songs," and will hereafter issue the collection as one of their own regular line of standard music books.

COLLEGE SONGS.

The Ever Popular Book.

A Collection of nearly 100 New and Popular Songs of the American Colleges.

COMPILED BY HENRY RANDALL WAITE.

Contains all the popular College Songs and is a general favorite. More than 100,000 copies already sold.

THOSE who glance through this decidedly lively and very musical book, will at once be struck with the great number and variety of the songs, and the care and good taste displayed in their arrangement. The pleasing songs which are heard everywhere, such as "Clementine," "Solomon Levi," "Rosalie," "Maiden of the Fleur de Lys," "Thou Art My Own Love," "Over the Banister," "Owl and Pussy Cat," "Paddy Duffy's Cart," The rich Troubadour Song, "Anna! Saint Anna!" The Volk-Songs of the German students, as "Lauterbach Maiden" and "There is a Tavern in the Town"; the most comical of the Irish songs, as "McSorley's Twins," and "The Irish Christening"; selections from popular "Jubilee" music; really rich classical music, as the "Chapel" quartet, and popular lyrics that are simply beautiful, as "Bring Back my Bonnie," and "Good bye, my Lover, good bye": — these, with the addition of the best College Songs, such as "Bingo," "Old Noah," "Jingle Bells," "Upidee," now widely known and esteemed, make this an uncommonly desirable book, as, in fact, the public are finding out that it is.

The Choruses of all the songs are made to be sung by MALE VOICES, but the compass is so moderate and arrangement so well fitted that the music may as easily be sung by MIXED VOICES in any social company. Solos may be sung by any voices, and have Piano Accompaniment.
